I did well at A Level but the WJEC Foundation Art and Design course really opened my eyes. I recommend it to everybody.

I'm so glad I did FAD. I was going to be a product designer but discovered on FAD that there was so much more to design and making. I'm loving every minute of my ceramics degree course.

Without doubt the hardest and most enjoyable year of my life. Everyone should do the FAD course - even if they want to become an economist - it teaches you to think in a different way.

FAD gave me an opportunity to see things from a different perspective. My project for the end of year show was a million miles from my previous work.

For further information on a FAD course near you pick up a leaflet or visit:

*UCAS retention figures for Art & Design degree courses show students who follow a one year FAD course after A Levels are more likely to make the right choice of degree course.
